New Cooperative Extension Director

As of January 1, 2011, I will assume the role of director for the University of California Cooperative Extension office in Stanislaus County. Despite severe budget cuts at the university and county level, our office will continue to produce and extend research-based information vital to the agricultural community in Stanislaus County. If you have suggestions on how we might better serve the local agricultural community (or have words of encouragement), we can be reached at 525-6800 or at raduncan@ucdavis.edu.
